	LFR: NETH3-2 Flirting with Disaster (Living Forgotten Realms - D&D 4e)	The orbit of Toril's moon often brings it across the sun's path, but astrological predictions of an upcoming total eclipse have sparked great interest. Many followers of Amaunator and Selune have gathered at the small city of Sapra in the land of Turmish, the best place from which to view the eclipse. The worshippers of the Moonmaiden see this as a time of celebration, with their Lady ascendant, while those who revere the Sunlord are less enthusiastic about the celestial conjunction. But it is the followers of a different entity, guided by maddening whispers, who prepare to enact a far different ritual when the earth darkens and the stars shine at midday. 	LFR: ADCP3-2 From Dawn Till dusk part 2 (Living Forgotten Realms - D&D 4e)	The Empire of Netheril has taken over the fortress of Spellgard -- Saharelgard, as they name it now -- and are compelling its oracle, Lady Saharel, to serve their will. Their dominance is not yet assured, but with reinforcements on the way, soon the pass will be closed and Netherese control of the area will be absolute. Only a twelve-hour window of opportunity is left to liberate Saharel and prevent the Shades from achieving a major victory. A Living Forgotten Realms two-round continuous-play Battle Interactive set at Spellgard for characters of the Heroic and Paragon tiers (levels 1-20). You should allow 11 hours of play time to run this event (we recommend two 5-hour back-to-back slots with a 1-hour dinner break). This adventure is combat-intensive. Players who do not enjoy combat encounters are less likely to enjoy this adventure. It is recommended that at least three of the characters at the table be members of the same Adventuring Company or meta-organization.	AD&D 4e	Current	Role Playing	Sunday	14:00
